

contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
Part I • Contexts of Dynamic Observer Narrative: Philosophy and Narrative Theory
One Modern Identity: Historical, Relational—and Narrative?	21
Two Structural and Historical Tensions in the Dynamic Observer Narrative	43
Part II • Nineteenth-Century Pasts
Three On the Right Side of History: Emerging Dynamic Observer Narration in Friedrich Ludwig Textor and Theodor Storm	67
Four War of the Words: Radical Internarration in Wilhelm Raabe's Stuffcake	98
Part III • Evolving Responses to National Socialism
Five Günter Grass's Litanies of the Past: Performative Language and Vergangenheitsbewältigung	129
Six My Mother, My Self: Language and (Dis)Identification in Postwar Mother Books	160

Seven	A Footnote to History: German Trauma and the Ethics of Holocaust Representation in W. G. Sebald's Austerlitz	191
Conclusion		221
Bibliography		229
Index		246